PROMOTERS OF PEACE.

Meeting of the Society That Favors Ar-bitration Rather That War. A meeting of the Peace Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Church of Our Father. Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood presided, and in opening said that the peace movement had grown rapidly. Within a week ratifications of treaties had been receive at the State Department from other American States.

Mrs. Leckwood referred to the recent Indian troubles, and put the blame at the deer of the Government. The objects of the Peace Association were many, but its chief object is the establishment of the deer of the Government. The objects of the Peace Association were many, but its chief object is the establishment of the grand court of nations for the settlement of all international disputes.

Other addresses were made by Rev. Olympia Brown, Rev. Sarah Perkins, Mrs. Agnes Kent, Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby, Mrs. Hannah J. Isabey Princess Viroqua, the Mohawk Indian, Mrs. Bessie Starr Kiefer, Rev. Amanda Deyo and others.

A motion to authorize the sending of a letter to Secretary Blaine urging the pro-posed international court was adopted. Brotherhood of St. Andrew

The local council of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held a general meeting last night in the Church of the Epiphany. H. K. Viele of St. Paul's Chapter presided. After, singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" President Viele delivered an address, saying the object of the council was to recourage a fraternal spirit among the members of the Brotherhood, to render assistance to the formation of chapters, and to prevent interest from be-caming the source.

Volunteer Defenders Want Congressional Relief. At a special meeting of the Association At a special meeting of the Association of Volunteer Defenders of the District of Columbia, held last night at St. George's Hall, the report of the committee appointed by the association to urge Congress to pass a bill reimbursing the members of the association for expenses incurred for uniforms and equipments was read and adopted.

The clustraan, Mr. George Wagner, thought that the bill might be passed during the present session of Congress.

Swelling the List of Vagrants. The vagrancy list at the workhouse was increased this morning. James Taylor, Peter Collins and Richard Nolan were all sent down for sixty days. Officers San-ford and Parker told Judge Miller that they had been begging upon the streets and were not known to be engaged in any occupation.

"While the list at the farm is already very large," said Judge Miller, "I see no other alternative for them but to take a ride in the van."

His Honor Knew Her. "Your flow of language is rarely equalled and seldom excelled," said Judge Miller when he questioned Jane Pierce, alias Jane Casaline, charged with vagrancy in the Police Court this morning. 'I recognize you as a very frequent witness here and know just exactly what credit I can give to what you say. Your presence in this court can be dispensed with for sixty days."

LOCAL TALKS.

What Persons, Prominent and Other-wise, Find to Interest Them, J. A. Wallace The children must have some kind of a craze all the time. First it was stamps, then strings of odd buttons and more recently the eards taken from igarette packages. The latest, however, cigarette packages. The latest however, is the collection of tags from plug to-bacco. Many of the boys will not hesitate to stop a man in the street and ask him for a tin tag or a cigarette card, and it is getting to be a nuisance.

The boys at the same time are cultivating the assignantance of people that they ought not to know, and having instilled in them habits that parents ought to discourage. I do not blame my boy for his desire to gain knowledge and experience. He is very destrous of collecting cigarette cards and stamps, but I have positively instructed him to not ask any one on the street for them. So far as I know he has not done so, and I always try to gather for him all that I can obtain.

Charlie Bacon, Manager for Rose Cogh-

try to gather for him all that I can obtain.

Charlie Bacon, Manager for Rose Corthlan—Thomas Whiffen, who is a member of Rose Coghlan's company this season, is an actor who nevertraveled much in the West, and in fact could never be induced to travel at all if there was any alternative. He has great ability for character work, and his Pitteness Green in "Hazel Kirke" will be remembered. In Triplet, the poor play wright in "Feg Woffington, he has a great scope, and his performance is said to entitle him to almost equal honors with Rose Coghlan. He made an unexpected hit in Milwankee the other night when, as Triplet, he was playing the fiddle for his wife and children in the cottage scene. Solos on musical instruments ostensibly played on the stage usually emanate from the wings, but Whiffen is a clever violinist, and his playing of "The Last Rose of Summer" not only brought down the house, but the members of the orchestra pricked up their ears as well.

He determined to enter them in the horse show, and, as his conclinant was a negro, he went to one of his friends and asked him for the loan of his man. This was willingly granted, and the next day the caschman went down to the exposition milding to see the horses. He inspected them gravely and critically, and when he had finished turned to the millionaire and said:

said:

"HI'm werry sorry, sir, but I cawn't drive them losses, sir. You'il 'ave to get some one else, sir."

"Why," exclaimed the gentleman in surprise, "what's the matter?"

"You see, sir," the coachman replied, "their tails isn't docked."

"What difference does that make?" said the coachman. "Hit makes a bloomin' lot of difference. Hi couldn't pawsibly drive a pair of long-tailed 'osses. Hit would 'nit my repetation, sir."

And the millionarie had to get another driver. However, he took a prize.

London Letter to New York Tribune. It is understood that when the term of her widowhood is up the Duchess of Manchester will wed Lord Hartington. Society, for reasons of its own, settled this event right off as soon as the Duke of Manchester's death was announced. The ducal menage had been for many years one not to be udderstood of common peo-ple, and this marriage, should it take place, would seem to be a natural conse-place, would seem to be a natural consequence.

Should the Duchess enter upon this marriage, she will come to her new lord almost penniless. The late Duke, by his will, behaved most handsomely to his reliet as long as she remained in a single state. She has his splendid house in Great Stanhope street and all it contains. The Duke's principal revenues tame from estates he had shrewdly bought in New Zealand and Australia. Two-thirds of this income he bequeathed to his widow, in addition to one-half of the income from the residuary estate.

This is a handsome provision, enabling the Duchees to maintain her position at home and abroad. But in the event of her marrying again, every penny reverts to the Duke's three children. This, of course, would be a matter of very little moment to the bride of the heir presumptive of the Dukedom of Devonshire, one of the richest peerages in the kingdom.
